

Liturgy and Topography in Jerusalem Graduate Summer School

Pontificio Istituto Orientale – Universität Regensburg

12–29 August 2024

Over 18 days the Graduate Summer School aims to familiarize participants with, and expose them to, the life of the churches of Jerusalem—both past and present—through participatory observation at churches, shrines, and archaeological sites of the Holy City and through seminars in a classroom setting. This 2024 Summer School focuses on the sacred topography and liturgical tradition of Jerusalem; it considers biblical and parabiblical, historical and theological themes and questions, with special attention to the feasts of the season. Excursions to Mount Tabor and Galilee, as well as Bethlehem, Mar Saba, and the environs of Jerusalem form part of the programme.

Instructors: Harald Buchinger (University of Regensburg), Daniel Galadza (Pontifical Oriental Institute), and Josef Briffa (Pontifical Biblical Institute), with guest lecturers

Credits: up to 6 ECTS

Location: Pontifical Biblical Institute, 3 Paul Emile Botta St., 91004 Jerusalem

The Summer School is aimed at graduate students in theology, liturgy, history, and Eastern Christian studies. Limited space is available. Applicants should fill out the registration form and submit a CV, a letter of motivation, and two letters of reference. The language of instruction and communication is English.

Application deadline: 1 January 2024
